COURSE DESCRIPTION:
Examines the information and technology needs, uses, and seeking of older adults, with attention to aging in society, successful longevity, lifelong learning, health information, information service provision and evaluation, technology and interface design, technology affordances, and information use environments of older adults.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:
At the end of the course, the student will be able to:
1. Explain the factors that influence information and technology use by older adults
2. Assess the information and technology needs and seeking of older adults
3. Plan information and technology services for older adults
4. Evaluate information and technology with respect to design for use by older adults

COURSE MATERIALS:
All required and recommended readings will be provided via the course website, or available online.

COURSE ASSIGNMENTS AND EVALUATION:

EVALUATION (40 points)

• Evaluation of information or technology system or service (20 points)
  You will complete an evaluation, approximately 1,000 words in length, of an information or technology system or service of relevance to older adults. Your evaluations should be structured based on the course material and readings that introduce the process of evaluation. Your evaluation may be on but is not limited to web sites, library services, library programs, technology training programs, digital libraries, health information systems, and information technologies.

- Evaluation discussion leading (20 points)
  You will each lead a class discussion for 20-30 minutes on your evaluation of an information or technology system or service. Your discussion should include a summary of the system or service and the evaluation, questions for fellow students, and time for questions from the class.

COURSE PROJECT (60 points)

- Project proposal (10 points)
  You will write a brief (approximately 500-word) proposal for the course project they intend to complete. The proposal will include three parts. First, describe the topic you wish to cover in your project this semester, including why you want to do it. Second, tell us clearly and concretely what outputs you will produce by the middle, and end, of the course. Third and finally, explain how the outputs will be useful to you in your education and career as an information professional.

- Project mid-term output (20 points)
  You will complete approximately half of your course project, turning in one or more outputs (previously agreed on in the proposal and resulting feedback) to be given feedback and check your progress. Possible mid-term outputs include but are not limited to a portion or draft of a synthesized literature review (using at least three sources outside of course readings), a short literature review and method outline for a research proposal, a portion of a Web site or service, or requirements gathering for an information system or service.

- Project final output (30 points)
  You will complete your entire course project, turning in the outputs you committed to in your proposal and in consultation with us. As noted above, possible outputs include but are not limited to a synthesized literature review paper (using at least six sources outside of course readings), a research proposal paper, a prototype of a Web site or service, or a design brief for an information system or service.
