COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Students are introduced to legal resources and their use for legal research. Upon completion of this course, the student will understand how legal information is organized and structured, and be able to retrieve laws and regulations from many sources. This course is designed to enable a student to function effectively as an information management professional in any type of legal setting, including a law library.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

At the end of the course, the student will be able to:

1. Locate pertinent materials of both a law and law-related nature, and recognize their importance and relevance to the issue at hand;
2. Understand the relationships among branches and levels of governance in terms of both the substance and procedural aspects of law;
3. Develop a thorough understanding of the processes by which law is created and applied to a given problem or situation;
4. Demonstrate some knowledge of the legal professions and the public to appropriately address the legal information needs of the population being served;
5. Develop a working vocabulary of legal terminology, and a facility with legal citation and abbreviations;
6. Develop knowledge of the literature of the law in its various formats; and
7. Facilitate the use and dissemination of information in ways that are both ethical and legal, and in keeping with generally accepted professional standards and practices.
COURSE MATERIALS:

- Other free/open websites and materials to be made available by the professor.

COURSE ASSIGNMENTS AND EVALUATION:

- Discussions, as described below
- Tests and Quizzes that will be administered via the course website. These will consist of easily administered/graded question types, such as true/false, multiple choice, and fill-in-the-blanks.

The course will be a mix of lectures, class discussion, and periodic assignments to measure comprehension. I will provide a framework for understanding the readings at the beginning of each section, and I will discuss the key concepts and terms that are important to understand. All students will meet in the Elluminate chat room for the first hour. In the second hour, students will retreat to their Blackboard team rooms where they will: (1) Discuss the weeks readings, (2) discuss the practice questions given.

For your second hour of group work, each team will select a leader on a rotating basis. Each team leader will be responsible for starting the recording function in the team’s chat room. Other members should remind the team leader if s/he forgets. This is a good area in which to discuss the quizzes and your individual experiences answering them. Also, you can use this space (in addition to the teams discussion board and the general discussion board) to discuss the end of chapter exercises in the textbook, as well as any Questions for Discussion. If there are non-textbook readings (all of which will be available online), then each team should also be prepared to discuss this reading as well.

Finally, each team leader should post their answers to the Blackboard discussion board as a REPLY to my question, NOT as a new thread. Team members should not read or consult other team’s answers before posting their own.

For the first few weeks, Class Discussions will not be graded, but they will be evaluated and given feedback. After that, Class Discussions will be graded pass/fail, in order to stimulate interesting conversation.
