2. Name and provide information about the most widely recognized United States authors, illustrators, and publishers whose works are recognized in the field of multicultural literature and information resources for children and young adults.
3. Identify and use selection and evaluation criteria, including those criteria that identify authentic portrayals of cultural and ethnic groups.
4. Discuss issues of ethnicity and culture in relation to selection and use of literature and information resources to meet the needs of children and young adults.
5. Identify and discuss issues related to prejudice, discrimination, racism, and stereotyping as reflected in materials and other resources for children and young adults.
6. Describe strategies for incorporating multicultural literature and information resources in classrooms and libraries.
7. Explain how multicultural literature can help meet the developmental, informational, and recreational needs of children and young adults.
COURSE MATERIALS:

Required Textbook:

Choice Books:
- Selected picture books from the Children’s Digital Library (a free online resource). The titles will be listed on the course website under the Weekly Activities folder for the given week.
- Other award-winning and culturally authentic books of your choice can be used for your assignments. Criteria for book selection will be discussed in class (some may need to be approved by the instructor).

Other Resources:

Other required readings and supplementary materials (e.g. articles, recommended websites, video shorts, etc.) are assigned most weeks, and will be posted on the Bb site in the appropriate Weekly Folder.

Recommended Textbook:
Louise Derman-Sparks & Julie Olsen Edwards, Anti-Bias Education for Young Children and Ourselves (NAEYC).

Recommended Literature:
Books representing different micro-cultures within the United States will be assigned, suggested, and/or discussed. A few stand out examples include:
- Christopher Paul Curtis, Elijah of Buxton (Scholastic Press).
- Sundee T. Frazier, Brendan Buckley's Universe and Everything in It (Delacorte Books for Young Readers).
- Tim Tingle/Jeanne Bridges, Crossing Bok Chitto (Cinco Puntos Press).
COURSE ASSIGNMENTS AND EVALUATION:

Class Attendance & Participation: Attend and actively participate in 10 (out of 13) required class sessions, including thoughtful discussions of books and required readings. Complete any required readings and viewings for the week before class. This gives you 3 “freebie” days that you can miss without an excuse or penalty.

Book Discussion Leadership [Group Assignment]: Lead one class discussion (about the topic, required/suggested readings for that week). Leading the discussion includes preparation and reflection activities.

Booktalk or Book Trailer Paper and Presentation: Write and perform/record a booktalk or book trailer about an award-winning children's or YA book of your choice that represents authentic multicultural literature (fiction or non-fiction, targeting ages 9 and up). Criteria for book selection will be discussed in class (and selections must be approved by the instructor). The Booktalk/Book Trailer Paper and Presentation will include using various models and techniques.

Read and Reacts/Discussion Board Posts: Write 10 “Read and Reacts” (RR). These are short, reflective reactions to required readings and other course materials. RR's are due before the class in which the materials are to be discussed. RR prompts are posted on the course website the week before they are due.

Final Project: Choose between one of the following: Option 1: A theme or issue paper supported by recommended multicultural literature. Option 2: An assessment of—and recommendations for—the multicultural literature collection of an exciting school or public library for children or young adults.
